Roof Fire at Old White School House—Cold Compels Suspension of Quarrying—D. A. R. Essay Prize Won by Miss Sallie E. Coy—Obituary Notes—Commissioners Appointed to Pass Upon Disallowed North Stonington Claim.

Senator Louis W. Arnold of Westerly, as a commissioner of the state sinking funds, attended the annual meeting in Providence Thursday, when the accounts of Walter A. Bond, treasurer of the commission, were approved and audited. The statement showed the accumulations to be: State house fund, $587,664; state highway construction, $38,209; Providence armory, $14,746; Metropolitan park loan, $15,322; and penal and reformatory loan, $4,056.

The annual meeting of Washington county Pomona grange, Patrons of Husbandry, was held Wednesday with Quinnesett grange, every grange being represented, except that at Westerly. The intellectual feature of the session was an address upon Education in the Grange, by President Edwards of the Rhode Island state college, upon which there was general discussion. The fifth or Pomona degree was conferred upon a class of five. Officers for the ensuing year were elected, Charles F. Bentley being chosen master.

There was a fire alarm sent in at 12:45 Thursday morning for a blaze on the roof of the Old White schoolhouse, in Dickens park, caused by a spark from a passing locomotive. The P. S. Barber hose company responded and the fire was extinguished before any material damage was done. The house is occupied by Frederick Bloeser and family.

It is many years since the Old White schoolhouse has been utilized for educational purposes. It was some years ago one of the three schoolhouses in the Pawcatuck district, the others being on Liberty street and Pendleton hill. When the Palmer street school house was built, the Old White school house was abandoned, and subsequently the Palmer street structure was discontinued upon the completion of the handsome and modern Pawcatuck high school building.

Although the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. claims ownership of the land upon which Louis Cella's new building stands, and he has received verbal notice to remove his building from the premises, Mr. Cella is of the opinion that he is the rightful owner of the property, for he holds a warranty deed of the same, which accompanied the purchase from John H. Ryan, administrator of the estate of the alleged former owner. Therefore, he proposes to defend what he believes to be his legal rights.

On the other hand, it is alleged that his building covers the foundation to the bridge abutments at the corner of West Broad and Mechanic streets. The main object of the railroad workmen entering the premises, Wednesday, so it is said, was to locate the foundation, and this was done before they were forcibly ejected.

Westerly quarrymen are in enforced idleness by reason of the cold, which makes the quarrying of granite impracticable. With the winter in the air, there is difficulty in quarrying to the desired sizes, and a consequent waste of stock and time is the natural and unprofitable result. When the granite is "thawed out," the quarry work will be resumed.

It has been suggested that the public library should place a tablet on the exterior of the building, giving comprehensive information relative to its inception, construction and its purpose for the good of the public. These matters are familiar to the present generation of dwellers in Westerly, but provision should be made for the information of the future and for the visitors of the present time as well as those of the future.

The prize of two dollars offered by Phebe Green Ward chapter, D. A. R., to the high school for the best essay on a specified subject, was won by Miss Sallie E. Coy, class of 1910, and Miss Marjorie D. Barber was given honorable mention. The subject of the prize winning essay was Our Foreign Relations During the Revolutionary War. The essays in competition were written in the school building two weeks ago and announcement of winner was made Thursday.

The judges were Mrs. Ellaha Burdick, Mrs. A. N. Crandall, Mrs. F. C. Buffum and Mrs. S. H. Cathart.

There was a large attendance at the funeral of Wanda, wife of Merton B. Lewis, held Thursday, with a high mass of requiem in St. Michael's church, Rev. James W. Cunningham, celebrant. Burial was in the new St. Michael's cemetery. The bearers were Michael Keegan, Harry Steadman, Andrew Fallon and Thomas McDowd. There were many beautiful floral tributes.

John McGrath died Wednesday at his home in Stonington in his 75th year. He came to Old Mystic from Ireland when a young man and worked at farming and afterwards managed the farm on the North road owned by the Messrs Dreier, near their summer home. Mr. McGrath has been in failing health for four years. He is survived by Mrs. McGrath and three daughters.

There was an interesting session of the probate court of North Stonington, Judge Calvin Snyder, Thursday afternoon, to act upon the petition of Judge Herbert W. Rathbun, representing Albert and Ruth Hilliard, for the appointment of commissioners to pass upon a claim for services disallowed by Jennie J. Thompson, administratrix of the estate of Frances A. Thompson.

Mrs. Thompson died over a year ago and last January Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard filed a claim for services rendered to Mr. Thompson, who was blind, and also to Mrs. Thompson. The service consisted of accompanying Mr. and Mrs. Thompson to New London and Westerly frequently, to board the couple two months a year and for miscellaneous work made necessary by Mr. Thompson's blindness.

Last week the administratrix notified the Hilliards that their claim was disallowed in whole. Judge Rathbun, taking advantage of a law that is new in Connecticut, petitioned for the appointment of commissioners to pass upon the disallowed claims.

Amos A. Browning of Norwich, counsel for administratrix, opposed the petition. After hearing lengthy arguments, Judge Snyder decided that commissioners should be appointed and named the following: C. Hadial Hall of New London, George A. Pendleton of North Stonington, and B. Frank Williams of Mystic.

JUSTICE LURTON AND LINCOLN.

How the New Member of the Supreme Court Got Out of a Union Prison.

Some months ago a company of representative men living in the midwest were the guests of Judge Henry S. Severns, an associate circuit judge of the Sixth judicial district, who lived in Lorton. The gathering took place at Grand Rapids, Mich., and in the course of the evening Judge Severns said to his friends that he had a little anecdote to tell them which might prove of interest to them. He said: "A youth of 17 years of age, whose home was in Tennessee, enlisted in the confederate army and took part in several of the important battles that were waged in eastern Tennessee and northern Georgia. In one of these battles he was captured and sent to the federal prison at Sandusky, O. His mother was distracted. In ways known only to herself she was able to penetrate to the union lines, and at last found herself in Washington, determined to have a personal interview with President Lincoln.

"What could she do there, a friendless and obscure woman, whose family had espoused the confederate cause? But she found the way to meet President Lincoln and to have an interview with him. All that she asked of him was that he restore her boy to her, permit her to go to the federal prison with an order for his release. And Lincoln gave her that order. She went to Sandusky, presented the order to the commandant, and speedily her boy was with her, free and on tacit parole.

"And there he now sits," said Judge Severns, pointing toward Judge Lorton. "Not one of those present knew of this incident excepting Judge Lorton and Judge Severns. But the anecdote as then told by Judge Severns was recalled after it became known that President Taft was considering the appointment of Judge Lorton as a member of the supreme court bench. And now that this appointment has been made, it will be possible for Judge Lorton to say to his associates upon that bench: "I was a prisoner of war in the federal prison at Sandusky, O. I was released by the personal order of President Lincoln, and upon the plea of my mother, and by reason of that release I was able to take up the study of law and procure admission to the bar, else I should not now be here."

Lawyers who have known of Judge Lorton's career upon the bench, and who have made a careful study of some of his opinions, are of the mind that the quality of his intellect is broad, comprehensive, rather than acute and penetrating, as was the leading characteristic of the late Justice Peckham. Judge Lorton is regarded as having no profound or ex-

Thomas L. Reilly's failure to carry his own town of Meriden in 1908 in his race for congressman, was no indication of his declining popularity there.
